Antimony flake feedstock deliveries to USAC related to the Company's contractual offtake agreements from its joint partner's Bolivian Hydrometallurgical ("Hydromet") facility have occurred and landed at the Thompson Falls smelter(s) during the third quarter. Due to its high purity (~99%), antimony flake will significantly improve the efficiency of our gas-fired furnaces.

Mr. Gary C. Evans, Chairman and CEO of USAC stated, "As our receipt of acceptable antimony material continues to increase from foreign sources along with our expanded processing capability at our new facility located in Thompson Falls, Montana, our ability to continue increasing our antimony ingot deliveries to the DLA is occurring. This is the first period in our company's nearly 60 year history that we are fulfilling a significant and extremely important delivery of a finished product so vitally necessary to our military for use in many different products. Additionally, now that we have begun processing the Stibnite Hill, Montana, antimony material mined late last year and this year, which now totals in excess of 400,000 pounds of antimony and is presently located in stockpile at Radersburg, Montana; new low-cost USAC antimony feed material will begin further improving our finished product margins.

About USAC:

United States Antimony Corporation and its subsidiaries in the U.S., Mexico, and Canada ("USAC," "U.S. Antimony," the "Company," "Our," "Us," or "We") sell antimony, zeolite, and precious metals primarily in the U.S., Mexico, and Canada. The Company mines, purchases, and processes ore primarily into antimony oxide, antimony metal, antimony trisulfide, and precious metals at its facilities located in Montana and Mexico. Antimony oxide is used to form a flame-retardant system for plastics, rubber, fiberglass, textile goods, paints, coatings, and paper, as a color fastener in paint, and as a phosphorescent agent in fluorescent light bulbs. Antimony metal is used in bearings, storage batteries, and ordnance. Antimony trisulfide is used as a primer in ammunition. The Company also recovers precious metals, primarily gold and silver, at its Montana facility from third party ore. At its Bear River Zeolite ("BRZ") facility located in Idaho, the Company mines and processes zeolite, a group of industrial minerals used in water filtration, sewage treatment, nuclear waste and other environmental cleanup, odor control, gas separation, animal nutrition, soil amendment and fertilizer, and other miscellaneous applications. Beginning in 2024 and continuing in 2025, the Company acquired mining claims, real properties (patented claims) and leases located in Alaska, Montana, and Ontario, Canada in an effort to reduce the cost of third-party antimony ore purchases and to expand its product offerings.
